The 1986/87 academic year was a year of growth and development for the College of Allied Health Sciences. Graduate education expanded further with the approval of a master's degree program in occupational therapy by the University's Board of Trustees in February for implementation in the fall of 1987.

At the undergraduate level, the Department of Cytotechnology and the Department of Medical Technology were consolidated to form a new Department of Laboratory Sciences. The Department of Diagnostic Imaging developed two new programs: the first university-based, baccalaureate-level, advanced imaging program and the nation's first integrated multicompetency baccalaureate-degree level curriculum in diagnostic imaging.

During the year, the College-sponsored Health Careers Guidance Clinic recognized its 5,000th student participant since 1968 when the program began (Fig. 87).

The College opened its Career Services Center in January, 1987. Believed to be the only such facility in the country at an organized college of allied health, the Center provided career services through programs, presentations and individual appointments for students and alumni.

In the summer of 1987, the College became more geographically consolidated when its administrative offices and the Department of Laboratory Sciences moved from Jefferson Alumni Hall to the Edison Building (Fig. 88).

Deidre Watkins Blank, R.N., D.S.N., a 1967 nursing graduate, was chosen to receive the College's Alumni Special Achievement Award, which was presented at University Opening Exercises in September. Dr. Blank was Chief of the Health Promotion/Disease Prevention Branch of the National Center for Nursing Research, National Institutes of Health (Fig. 89).

At the June 5 Commencement Exercises, 283 graduates of the College witnessed the conferring of an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree on distinguished educator Dr. K. Patricia Cross. The Student Life Award was presented to Carla Jane Carbo, cytotechnology (Fig. 90). In 1989 Ms. Carbo earned a master's of health science degree as a pathologist's assistant from Quinnipiac College and married a 1989 graduate of Jefferson Medical College, Christopher Jackson Reid, M.D.

Three of the summa cum laude graduates earned perfect 4.0 grade point averages: Margaret Bonner, Kathleen Hawe-Andjel and Lucille Whisler, all nursing.

Roberta M. Guertin, nursing, began her career at Jefferson Hospital and in 1989 was the first recipient of the Pennsylvania State Nurses Association's Search for Excellence Award.

Linda Carol Robinson, nursing, who had previously earned her diploma in nursing and an associate in arts degree from Jefferson, became the head nurse in the operating room for vascular/transplant surgery and coordinator for vascular research at Jefferson Hospital. She also travelled to Kenya as a member of "Operation Smile" in 1990.

Carla A. Crosby, physical therapy, after taking a specialty apprenticeship in hand therapy, became a therapist at Pennsylvania Hand Center and made a presentation at an international hand therapy meeting in Toronto in 1990. Randall K. Cope, physical therapy, became supervisor of outpatient physical therapy at Geisinger Medical Center in Danville, Pennsylvania, and a lecturer for the Arthritis Foundation.

Beth Fisher, occupational therapy, earned her department's academic achievement award for highest grade point average in the class. She was also class valedictorian and was inducted into the Alpha Eta Honor Society. Following graduation, she became a staff therapist for ReMed Recovery Care Centers and subsequently Director of their Community Re-entry Services Program. She developed expertise in head injuries and crisis intervention.

earned the Richard Cage Memorial Award for Academic Excellence in 1989 from Johns Hopkins Hospital where she completed an advanced imaging program. Barbara Price, cytotechnology, won the American Society of Cytology's Award in 1990. Diana Kwasnycky Zawadowycz, dental hygiene, who earned her department's Achievement Award in Education and Clarke J. Hollister Award, and who was also inducted into the Sigma Phi Alpha Honor Society, became a student at the dental school of Temple University.

Rosalie Chillemi-Di Ferdinand, dental hygiene, inductee into the Sigma Phi Alpha Honor Society and recipient of many departmental awards, received faculty appointments at Harcum Junior College and the University of Pennsylvania.

In September, 1987, Governor Casey proclaimed National Allied Health Week in Pennsylvania. Dean Abrams and President Blumele display a copy of the proclamation in Figure 91 and the banner was displayed on Walnut Street (Fig. 92).

In January, 1987, physical therapy students sponsored a charity Dance Marathon to benefit the South Jersey Burn Center.

The College's first Grand Marshall Linda G. Kraemer, Ph.D., carries the University Mace at the 1987 Commencement.

This year marked the beginning of the College's efforts to exert influence on the international health scene. The College was involved in the planning for the First World Congress on Allied Health, held in Elsinore, Denmark. The Conference was attended by more than 250 individuals from 26 countries. The College had a significant impact on its success, with 12 members of the faculty and administration presenting papers. Their presentations constituted more than 10% of the scholarly contributions to this assembly. Also on the international scene, Dean Abrams completed a three-week lecture tour of the People's Republic of China as a preliminary to a long-term project that would take shape over the next few years.

Meanwhile, the College was strengthening its academic programs with an eye to the future. The third graduate program in the College, a master of science in physical therapy degree, was approved by the University's Board of Trustees. The three-year program, combining the existing baccalaureate program with the one-year master's component, offered under the auspices of the College of Graduate Studies, would admit its first students in the fall of 1989. The program was designed with a focus on health promotion and disease prevention with a heavy research emphasis.

The College implemented the nation's first integrated multicompetency baccalaureate degree-level curriculum in diagnostic imaging. The program, combining radiography and ultrasound in a concentrated 28-month schedule, would admit its first students in September, 1988. The first class of 14 students graduated in December of 1990. The Department of Nursing expanded its graduate program to include two additional specializations, pediatric rehabilitation and critical care/trauma.

During the year, the College awarded an Alumni Special Achievement Award to Sister Rose Kershbaumer, S.C.M.M., a 1948 graduate of the School of Nursing (Fig. 93). A few years after her graduation and her work at Jefferson Hospital, Sister Rose prepared for nursing as a Medical Mission Sister in newly developing countries. She spent over 30 years in a variety of nursing roles, mostly in Africa, including more than 10 years with the World Health Organization.

On June 10, 328 graduates participated in Commencement Exercises, which featured the awarding of honorary degrees to Dr. Elizabeth J. Yerxa, occupational therapy scholar, and to Dr. Carol Ann Lehmann Lindeman, nurse researcher. Kathleen O'Brien, dental hygiene, who had previously received her department's Pro-

Professional Development and Leadership Awards, was presented with the College's Student Life Award at Commencement (Fig. 94).

Twelve graduates earned perfect 4.0 grade point averages: from dental hygiene, Helen Horan-Bourret; Julia Gunn-Hickenbottom, who was also inducted into the Sigma Phi Alpha and Alpha Eta Honor Societies; Diane Indictor-Sandberg, also Alpha Eta, and Bernadette Young, also Alpha Eta and her department's Achievement Award in Education and Esteemed Colleague Award; from diagnostic imaging, Frank Aritz also Alpha Eta; from nursing, Maureen Dimakopoulos; Bonnie Goldberg; Julie Hill; Sally Schell; Diane Schmidt; Barbara Shocker, and Jennie Basiago, who also won the Adeline Potter Memorial Award and entered the Jefferson M.S.N. program while pursuing her nursing career at the Hershey Medical Center.

Louise Clarke, cytotechnology, won the Tony Kostecky Cytotechnology Student of the Year Award, sponsored by the New Jersey Association of Cytology. Jay Field, cytotechnology, who had been a member of the Commons Board and Chairman of the students' United Way Campaign, took a position as a staff cytotechnologist at Fox Chase Cancer Center. He also assisted in student recruitment for the College's Department of Laboratory Sciences and became an active member of the Alumni Advisory Council.

Linda Piccone-Hood, dental hygiene, who was President of the Jefferson Chapter of the Student American Dental Hygienists' Association, won an award from that organization and was also inducted into the Sigma Phi Alpha Honor Society. Joyce Rohn Schaen, dental hygiene, the recipient of a Student American Dental Hygienists' Association Award as well as the department's Esteemed Colleague and Leadership Awards, continued her professional activities as a representative to the American Dental Hygienists' Association and the American Association of Dental Schools.

Daniel A. Merton, diagnostic imaging, an inductee into the Alpha Eta Honor Society, continued his career in the Division of Ultrasound, Department of Radiology of Jefferson Hospital, moving from staff ultrasonographer to ultrasonographer specialist/research sonographer in 1988 when he began working on the development of new applications of medical ultrasound. Between 1988 and 1990, he co-authored more than 10 published articles, had nearly 30 abstracts accepted for presentation, including one at the International Perinatal Doppler Society in Paris, and gave dozens of other lectures at professional meetings throughout the United States. He also began his own business as a private consultant in diagnostic ultrasound.

Elaine M. Venuti (Fig. 95), medical technology, who was inducted into the Alpha Eta Honor Society (Fig. 96), began her career at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania as a microbiologist and in 1990 was also a part-time student in the master's degree microbiology program at Jefferson's College of Graduate Studies. She also served on the Alumni Advisory Council.

Kathleen Klein, occupational therapy, a summa cum laude graduate, received three departmental recognitions, the Academic Achievement Award for the highest grade point average, a Meritorious Service Award and Valedictorian of her class (Fig. 97). An inductee in the Alpha Eta Honor Society, she was also a presenter at the 1988 and 1989 national conventions of the American Occupational Therapy Association. In 1989, Ms. Klein returned to Jefferson to pursue a master's degree in occupational therapy, and in 1990 she began her own business, Cape May Therapy Services.

Julie Monahan, physical therapy, was inducted into the Alpha Eta Honor Society as well as receiving her department's Faculty Award and Academic Achievement Award for the highest grade point average in her class, graduating summa cum laude (Fig. 98). By 1990 she had become the senior physical therapist at Jefferson Hospital and had made professional presentations for the Pennsylvania chapter of the American Physical Therapy Association and the National Spinal Cord Injury Association.

Maria Mazzitelli, Steven S. Walther and Mary Coleen Sholomisky, nursing, earned their master of science degrees in nurse anesthesiology from Albany Medical College in 1990. Kathleen Carlson, nursing, a graduate of the College's Harrisburg program and a staff member of the Pennsylvania Nurses Association, wrote the Pennsylvania Nurses Practice Act. Diane Gittlemacker, nursing, founded a non-profit organization called Changes, Unlimited, Inc. to help recovering alcoholics and drug addicts.

During the 1988/89 academic year, Dean Lawrence Abrams led a six-person delegation from the College to the People's Republic of China as part of a long-term project to design and establish five colleges of allied health sciences in that country. On the national level, Dean Abrams began a two-year term as President of the American Society of Allied Health Professions. He was installed in November at the organization's 21st Annual Conference in New Orleans (Fig. 99).

The College-sponsored Health Careers Guidance Clinic made significant changes. After 20 years and more than 5,000 students, the Clinic discontinued the student clinic component of the program. However, the Clinic extended its counselor workshop program and published the ninth edition of the Health Careers Guidance Manual, co-edited by Dean Abrams and Dorothy Grieb and expanded to include every county in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware (Fig. 100). In its first national initiative, the Clinic inaugurated a toll-free, nationwide 800 number for health careers information and guidance. The only one of its kind in the country, this National Health Careers Information Hotline proved to be immediately successful, receiving 20,000 calls during the first year and more than that the following year (Fig. 101).

Faculty in the College's cytotechnology program played a leading role in the national Pap-smear controversy sharing their expertise with Congress and professional organizations about factors that may cause misdiagnosis of Pap smears and how to prevent the potentially deadly errors.

For the first time in the University's history, the College of Allied Health Sciences held its Commencement Exercises on a different day from those of the Medical College and the College of Graduate Studies because the College converted its academic schedule from the quarter system to a semester calendar. The ceremony continued to be held at the traditional site, the Academy of Music, but was moved to a Thursday because the Academy was not available on a Friday. The May 11 Commencement featured 305 graduates. Reverend Leon Sullivan, an internationally recognized black social activist, received an honorary degree and gave an inspiring address to the graduates (Fig. 102).

The Student Life Award was won by Amy Beth Cole, physical therapy. She was also inducted into the Alpha Eta Honor Society. Eight graduates earned a perfect 4.0 grade point average: from diagnostic imaging, Frank Aritz and Deborah Dawson Werneburg, who also became the Pennsylvania state representative for the Society of Diagnostic Medical Sonographers and a guest lecturer for the College's Diagnostic Medical Sonography program students; from nursing, Constance Cox, also inducted into the Alpha Eta Honor Society; Elaine Mallios; Irma Neckritz-Yehuda, also Alpha Eta; Barbara Ryley, also Alpha Eta; Joyce Williams, and Joan Zomchick, also Sigma Theta Tau Honor Society.

Maureen Dorsey, dental hygiene, was a scholarship recipient, a winner of departmental and Student American Dental Hygienists' Association awards, and an inductee into the Alpha Eta and Sigma Phi Alpha Honor Societies. Lillian J. Feliciani, dental hygiene, earned the department's Professional Achievement Award, earned induction into the Alpha Eta Honor Society and gave numerous professional presentations, locally, regionally and nationally. While continuing her career in a private dental practice, she also taught part time at Jefferson and at Montgomery County Community College. Kristin Flemming, diagnostic imaging, began her own business as President of Radiology Techs, Inc. of Trevose, Pennsylvania. Cheryl Shames, physical therapy, and Susan Edwards, occupational therapy, earned academic achievement awards for the highest grade point averages in their respective programs. Ms. Edwards was also named Valedictorian of the occupational therapy class.

Marcella Dawson, cytotechnology, received the Warren R. Lang Scholarship Award, sponsored by the American Society for Cytotechnology. Clementine Hawthorne, cytotechnology, continued in her position as supervisor of the Cytopathology Department in the Clinical Laboratory of Jefferson Hospital, serving also as clinical laboratory instructor for Jefferson cytotechnology students and as a participant in the Career Options series co-sponsored by the College's Alumni Office and Career Services Center.

M. Ellen Botella, nursing, was the recipient of the 1989 Outstanding Adult Student in Higher Education Award, given by the Pennsylvania Association for Adult Continuing Education (Fig. 103). Judith C. Carrozza, nursing, a scholarship recipient, vice president of student government, Sigma Theta Tau Honor Society inductee, and summa cum laude graduate, began her career at Jefferson Hospital as a registered nurse in the neurosensory care program and later in the pediatric intensive care unit. Sherry Alyse Kaplan, nursing, who was chairman of the College's Orientation Committee in 1989, President of the department's chapter of the Student Nurses Association of Pennsylvania and an inductee into the Sigma Theta Tau Honor Society, also began her career at Jefferson Hospital.

*If any thing is sacred the human body is sacred,
 And the glory and sweet of a man is the token of manhood untainted,
 And in man or woman a clean, strong, firm-fibred body, is more beautiful than the most beautiful face.*

Walt Whitman [1819–1892]
Leaves of Grass,
 “I Sing the Body Electric”

The College of Allied Health Sciences celebrated its 20th anniversary during the 1989/90 academic year. At Opening Exercises, an honorary degree was presented to Dr. Edmund J. McTernan (Fig. 104), a nationally known figure in allied health, and a gift of a lectern was presented to the University by the College (Fig. 105). In October, the College sponsored a research day featuring poster presentations by alumni and students, preceded by a speech by Maggie Kuhn, founder of the Gray Panthers. Later in the year, the Scott Memorial Library held an exhibit that focused on the history of the College. In April, a luncheon was held honoring alumni who had been recipients of the Alumni Special Achievement Award or the Achievement Award for Student Life, and plaques to be permanently displayed in the College were dedicated. The culmination of the 20th anniversary celebration was the Alumni Day Cruise, held on the ship "Spirit of Philadelphia" (Fig. 106).

The Report of the Task Force to Plan the Focus of the College of Allied Health Sciences for the 1990s was accepted by the Board of Trustees. One of the major recommendations, the establishment of a Center for Collaborative Research, was implemented.

A Dean's Council of Overseers, representing leaders in the community, business and the health care professions, was formed to bring the College leadership new perspectives, based on broad practical experience. An alumna of the College's nursing program, Jane Marko Carabasi,

B.S.N., Ed.D., was among the first members of the Council.

The year was marked also by the master's degree program in nursing receiving its initial accreditation from the National League for Nursing.

The 1990 Commencement, held on May 18, was the last at which President Bluemle would preside before his retirement the following month and the last for Edward C. Driscoll as Chairman of the Board of Trustees before he stepped down from that position at the same time (Fig. 107).

Honorary degrees were presented to Byllye Y. Avery, founder of the National Black Women's Health Project, and to higher education researcher Dr. Alexander W. Astin (Fig. 107).

Among the 287 graduates at the Commencement was Lisa Klinger, dental hygiene, who won the College's Student Life Award (Fig. 108). Ms. Klinger was also elected to the Alpha Eta Honor Society and Sigma Phi Alpha. She received the Student American Dental Hygienists' Association Award, among other honors.

Five graduates earned perfect 4.0 averages: Mary Jo Cosgrove, dental hygiene; Carol Ann Bass, medical technology; and Christine Arnold, Antoinette Falconi and Elizabeth Kempf, nursing.

Holli Sue Pheasant, nursing, who was president of the Student Nurses Association and was inducted into Sigma Theta Tau, the nursing honor society, entered Jefferson Medical College in September, 1990. Mary Ann Albano Sigmund, cytotechnology, received the Warren R. Lang Scholarship Award sponsored by the American Society for Cytotechnology. Lisa Vaughan, dental hygiene, winner of several awards, continued to be involved and to hold leadership roles in both the New Jersey and Southern New Jersey Dental Hygienists Associations.

Maureen A. Fox, nursing, who graduated summa cum laude, was inducted into Sigma Theta Tau Honor Society and named to Who's Who in American Nursing among her recognitions (Fig. 109). A clinical nurse II at Jefferson Hospital, Ms. Fox continued her studies in the MSN/MBA dual degree program at Widener University. Raezel Tucker, occupational therapy (OT), earned the highest grade point average in the OT certificate program, graduated summa cum laude, was Valedictorian of her OT class, and was inducted into the Alpha Eta Honor Society. Catherine Miller, physical therapy, earned the department's academic award for highest grade point average in her class.

The nearly 4000 Alumni of the College of Allied Health Sciences have pursued diverse careers. Many have continued their education to masters and doctoral degrees. Others have entered teaching and research. Numerous graduates have been attracted to hospitals, laboratories and the pharmaceutical industry. The disciplines acquired during their training have provided a solid background for whatever fields they entered.

The College of Allied Health Sciences has become established as a leading force in the national arena for innovative programs and teaching in this increasingly sophisticated field. Further progress is envisioned with greater emphasis on research. A Strategic Plan for the Nineties provides forward-looking guidelines for this effort.
